SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1873. "THANK the Lord !" is the pious ciacu lation with which the Hancock Courier records the adjournment of the Legisla-THE Wellsburg Herald predicts that when the Legislature reassembles next October, the Liquor Law will be repealed. Very likely. If it is not, we shall expect our friend of the Parkersburgh Times to emigrate.

A Little Testimonial.

A STRING OF BEADS FOR THE LEGISLA TURE-REWARD OF MERIT.

TURE—HEWARD OF MERIT.

(From the Parkersburg Times of Wednesday.)

If the several personifications of not very lofty instincts, and ignorant conceit, who stepped off the Charleston boats, who stepped off the Charleston boats, were truly representatives of the people of this State, we would congratulate our colored fellow citizens upon the insertion of the word "white" in the jury law—and in fact in every other.

The best trick to play upon the Legislative scalawags, on their landing yesterday, would have been closing up the barrooms until train time. But then the session is not over yet, and we had better rejoice that things are no worse than rejoice that things are no worse than they are.

WE understand the general apology of the Legislative topers who voted for the anti-liquor bill is, that they had no fear of making themselves unpopular with the people in the country who had no great interest in the matter, and that the town voters were breaking in the migority in the roters were largely in the minority in the State.

It had been proposed in certain quarters to serenade the Legislative cargo of the Charleston boats to the tune of the "Rogue's March," but upon reflection, it was concluded best to keep quiet, less the recipients of the entertainment might console themselves with the presumption that "being greeted as knaves, they were at lesst not regarded as fools."

A brief phrenological observation of a certain lot of people just returned from Charleston has taken the marvel out of anything that was done there last winter.

anything that was done there last winter. tar as we are concerned, at least.

We are not informed whether the rush a We are not informed whether the rush of our city police to the wharf when the Charleston boat landed was for the protection of those slouchy topers with carpet bugs, or of our own citizens.

Some persons expressed an inordinate four last right, of having their coolers.

fear, last night, of having their pockets picked. Superfluous apprehension ork was done at Charleston before the

We understand that, yesterday, several We understand that, yesterday, several of the members, particularly those who voted for that silly, malicious and hypocritical law, drank OFTEN and DEEPLY, preparing themselves to fight the, as they believed, threatened mob, by which they expected to be attacked. As, however, no mob came, they drank again until they got tull, tuller, very full. These are the men who make laws for West Virginia.

The Gold' Rise.

The rise in the price of gold, or, rather, the depreciation in the value of green-backs, has created an uncomfortable flurbacks, has created an uncomfortable flur-ry in Wall street, and has had a depress-ing effect upon business generally. And, contrary to expectations in some quarters, gold has shown no inclination to drop back to its former prices. The reasons are simple, and not difficult to find. Among our heavy-bankers who have the most intinate relations with the Govern-ment and who seem to possess the attriment, and who seem to possess the attri-bute of fore knowledge so far as financial movements are concerned, there is an impression that, notwithstanding the as-impression that, notwithstanding the assurance to the contrary, there is soon to be an inflation of the currency. These financial barometers seldom, if gever, tall.

But the shrewd financiers think they discover plenty of reasons for believing the government will soon resort to the policy of inflation. The new Secretary of the Treasury has always believed in that the Treasury has always believed in that policy, and is known to have a great deal of influence in the Cabinet and over the President. He has always contended, in ache, Billous Attacks, and all described and the population of the property President. He has always contended, in opposition to eminent members of Congress, that the government has a right to re-issue the forty-four millions of currency withdrawn from circulation and idle in the Treasury; and it is remembered that he actually put some millions of it into the market last autumn for political and other reasons. Believing in the right to re-issue reasons. Believing in the right to re-issue this currency, whether he will do so is purely a question of policy, to be determined by the real or supposed exigencies of the money market. And with three hundred millions of bonds to place in the markets of Europe, where confidence in American bonds is slightly shaken and the value of domestic securities has added to the value of domestic securities has added to the value of domestic securities. the value of domestic securities has adstringency nere, our asute manciers think they see the exigency which will be pressed as a reason and excuse for inflation. They may be mistaken in their calculations; but these idle millions in the Treasury, under the fingers of a Secretary who is impatient to throw them upon the market are constant termination.

who is impatient to throw them upon the market, are a constant temptation.

The rise in gold might have been prevented had our merchants kept their importations down to the lowest possible figure. But, instead of this, they imported heavily to meet the expected demands of a brisk spring trade; and this alone would materially affect the price of gold for a time. An immediate reduction of imports is of course impossible, and the drain of gold to meet payments in the foreign market, added to the vast sums that will be taken abroad by the thousands who will visit Europe the coming summer, must necessarily have a depressing mer, must necessarily have a depressieffect upon exchanges. In view of the tacts, and while our capitalists and bank lacts, and write our capitalists and consers anticipate an inflation of the cufrency by the re issue of greenbacks now withdrawn from circulation, we cannot confidently count upon a decline in the price of gold.—N. Y. Graphic

Severe Hailstorm at Cambridge.

(From the Guernesy Times.)

On last Sunday atternoon, a destructive hallstorm passed over our town. There is alweys something grand, as well as terrible in Nature, when she gives a first class exhibition of her powers as a destroying agent. In the present instance she did not fall to keep up her usual standard in that particular. She pelted old mother earth in an unusually sprightly and energetic manner with hallstones, varying in size, the largest of which reached the size of a black wainut. The noise, as she showered her grape shot down upon the roofs of the houses, was simply awful, and the crash of window panes mingling with the roar of the tempest, was anything but pleasant to see or hear. Ornamental and fruit trees were damaged to an unusual extent. When the storm had passed off sufficiently to allow our citizens to venture out without the fear of cracked sconces, it was found that few windows remained entire trees the ports had prest side to the little to the total of the properties of the standard of the properties of the passed of (From the Guernsey Times.) found that few windows remained entire upon the north and west sides of our build upon the north and west sides of our build ings. Some houses had as many as one hundred and forty panes of glass broken out. We have no reliable means of informing ourselves as to the exact number of panes of glass destroyed in town; but judging from the number sold by the leading glass stores during the first day atter the storm, conclude that not less than from 4,000 to 5,000 were crushed by the Btorm King on that eccasion. Upon the whole, it was the most destructive hall

Symptom of Terrible Significance to the Pulmonary Invalid!

Many persons who consult us in the first and my Family Physician has often told me that I could not nave Consumption veificul a cough.

Such advice has lared tens of thousands to the grave unawares, and in most cases is a flimey excess, a mere subterfage, to conceal from the patient his real danger. Few physicians are so ignorant of the leading characteristics of this terrible malady as not to know that the Irritative Cough of Philhisis rarely sots in until the advanced stage of the discase has been developed. When Tubercle is first formed in the Lungs, it is solid and, like old cheese, is easily crumb'ed amail quantities not larger than a grain of wheat are sometimes coughed up, and for the moment excite the fears of the patient. But a large quantity may be deposited and remain a long amo without developing any starming symptoms to the patient. True there may be a little, short, irritable, hacking effort in some cases—come loss of color, feets and strength—the breathing a little what calcerated on exertion—the pains of the tto more nurried and difficult, and the pulse some-what accelerated on exertion—the palms of the hands and soles of the feet, even the face, slight-ily warmer at times than is natural—the appeite disturbed—the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys, and in females, the menstrual fanction more or less deranged. All these symptoms may exist in a-mild degree, while the Gough seldom becomes well marked, and persistent until the tubercle softens, exvities formed and the translethet even well marked and persistent until the tubercle softems, cavities formed and the inevitable fattal stage reached.

Softems, cavities formed and the inevitable fattal stage reached.

He formed a softem control of the most capitals mechanism, we detect the presence are softem control of the most capitals of the control of the most capital stage of the cover anything beyond "something wrong" until it is too tate toy the best medical talent and skill it o avail, while those who devote their attention mainly to those and other Chronic Aliments can promptly detectand interpret with absolute certainty even the weak condition of the Lungs which just precedes the interclous formation.

You pay large sums ammally for the insurance of your houses against fire, how much more railtonal to pay a few dollars to a well educated physician of experience and skill in these main in order to insurance and skill in the order and ormed and the inevitable futal
